

Angelina Spicer

Angelina Spicer is a comedian, actress and, more recently, a new mom. A cum laude graduate of Howard University, Spicer has smartly delved deep for comedy that's authentic. She became an outspoken advocate for maternal mental health after her diagnosis of postpartum depression (PPD). It was then that her journey to remove the stigma from the shame and guilt associated with PPD began. She teamed up with Red Bull cartoonist Chari Pere to transform some of her funniest social media posts into caricatures depicting the hilarious moments of Angelina's new life as a struggling mom. Her cartoon series Milk Mamas caught the attention of Plum Organics, and in 2016 Angelina joined the brands' national #ParentingUnfiltered campaign. Soon after, Angelina became the national spokesperson for the 2018 Blue Dot Project for Maternal Mental Health Week, with specific content targeting her loyal followers and removing the stigma on not being the "perfect mom".

Angelina has built an impressive online presence with her viral comedy sketches. It began as she portrayed Tyra Banks, Beyonce and Nicki Minaj on the Disney web-series Electric Spoofaloo. Her viral success catapulted her career from phone screens to the silver screen, when she's appeared several episodes of hit talk show THE REAL, and playing a crazy mix of characters on JIMMY KIMMEL LIVE, and CONAN. Many of her sidesplitting skits have featured on Huffington Post, The Wall Street Journal, Funny Or Die, WorldStar Hip Hop, Essence magazine, and been tweeted by countless celebrities including Shonda Rhimes, Taraji P. Henson and Taylor Swift.

Earlier this year Spicer amped things up when she launched a GoFundMe campaign to create a documentary film about her twelve month struggle with postpartum depression. Much like her live stand up comedy shows, the film is slated to hilariously depict Spicer's awkward transition into motherhood, her ridiculous race to return to work, complete denial of her postpartum struggles, her acceptance, recovery and triumphs over the illness.

Hailing from Howard U., education has always been at the cornerstone of Angelina's values—and her intellect is present in her comedy. Having been raised by a teen mother, and at times, joining her in college classes, Angelina was raised knowing that a strong education shapes a strong future. A long time advocate for child literacy, Angelina has been a volunteer storyteller, reading at Libraries, Inner City Schools, Hospitals and volunteering with Dr. Seuss' Read Across America. She also served as the mistress of ceremonies for the 2014 United Negro College Fund Walk for Education.